Ex-softball coach sues to get job back

Mitchell questions teacher's honesty, calls lawsuit 'frivolous'

From staff reports
 The former high school varsity softball coach who was ousted last summer when his brother was named interim principal wants his job back and has filed a lawsuit to make that happen.

He isn't alone. The parents of a softball player, Bryan and Jeannie Ashby, have joined the lawsuit, alleging their daughter's future in softball was harmed when Brian Glass lost his coaching job.

Brian Glass, who lost the job when his brother, Chris Glass, was promoted from assistant principal to interim principal at the high school, is suing Superintendent Sheila Mitchell and the Anderson County Board of Education.

In a filed response, Mitchell ques- tions Brian Glass' honest and

Obamacare sign-ups in county only 10 percent

Fines loom for thousands who missed enrollment deadline

From staff reports
 Thousands of Anderson County residents are facing Obamacare fines now that the Dec. 23 deadline to have coverage Jan. 1 has passed.

Only 10 percent of eligible Ander- son County residents law have signed up, according to information released last week by Gov. Steve Bes- hear's office, leaving 90 percent of them faced with paying fines equal to 1 percent of their income or $95, whichever is higher.

When the Affordable Care Act took effect at the beginning of last October, state officials estimated that 3,116 (16.7 percent) Anderson County residents didn't have health insurance either because they couldn't afford it or refused to pur- chase it.

Of that number, just over half (1,836) were eligible for the state's expanded Medicaid, a component of Obamacare that is fully funded by taxpayers.

As of last week, only 314 people in Anderson County had enrolled in

Story sparks perjury probe for woman who admits tying up granddaughter

The grandmother accused of tying up a 3-year-old girl avoided jail Tuesday after pleading guilty to criminal abuse, but still faces an inves- tigation for perjury based on an conduct- ed by The Anderson News.

Carolyn Case, 65, pled guilty Tuesday morning in Circuit Court to one count second-degree crimi- nal abuse, a Class D felony. The Common- wealth's Attorney's Office recommenda- tion included a five- year sentence with- out the possibility of probation, according to Commonwealth's Attorney Laura Don- nell.

As part of the agreement reached with the Commonwealth's Attorney's Office, Case also agreed to testify truthfully in any future court proceed- ings regarding the case.

A sentencing date for Case has been scheduled for Feb. 18.

Case, along with the girl's mother Rebecca Medley and the girl's father Her- bert Medley, was first charged with first- degree criminal child abuse in September 2012.

The charges stem from a state police investigation during which Case report- edly told troopers that the 3-year-old was tied to her bed from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. each day. Case also acknowledged that the child was also tied to the bed for a two-

Johnny Walton said around 6 a.m. Tuesday morning he woke up and saw that one wall of the barn had burst into flames. He said he called 911 while still inside the burning barn as he tried to get his two dogs out.

"Man, I can still taste that black smoke," Johnny Walton, standing in his father's living room, said.

hour nap, and spent an additional four hours tied up for discipline, according to the documents.

The 3-year-old girl was allegedly being tied up from June 1, 2012, through Aug. 3, 2012, when a child protective services worker alerted the state police.

Case was scheduled to stand trial earlier this month, but later accepted a plea offer from the Commonwealth's Attorney's office.

Prior to Case's court appearance Tuesday, The Anderson News had conducted an investigation into Case's indigent status after court documents showed Case may have perjured herself in an attempt to obtain a public defender.

Based on previous reporting by the newspaper, Donnell said Tuesday morning, the Commonwealth's Attorney's Office has requested an investigation into an allegation of perjury against Case.

"Of course, we were unaware of the allegation," Donnell said outside the Circuit Court room. "Once an allegation is brought to our attention, then an investigation will occur."

Case, according to court documents cited in a Jan. 1 report by The Anderson News, apparently did not inform the court of a change in her financial status based on a conversion or "reverse" mortgage for $132,000 she received in September 2013.

Case, who resides at 1024 Terri Lane, claimed on an affidavit of indigency that she did not own real estate shortly after her arrest in September of last year, according to the affidavit, which is on file in Anderson Circuit Court.

Judge Charles Hickman ordered a public defender for Case several days later.

According to the Jan. 1 article in The Anderson News, real estate documents on file in the Anderson County Clerk's office show Case has owned her Terri Lane property since 1977, and took sole ownership when her husband died in April 2009, more than three years before her arrest.

The deed to the property shows no change in ownership since that time, meaning it appears when Case claimed she did not own real estate on the affidavit, she actually did.

The perjury warning spelled out just above what appears to be Case's signature on the affidavit says that knowingly making any false statement could result in a prison sentence of up to five years.

The affidavit also instructs that recipients must "further swear to timely inform the court of any significant changes in any of the information above."

Case's name is also shown on property tax bills on file at the Anderson County Sheriff's Office, according to the Jan. 1 Anderson News report. The 2013 property tax statement shows that the property is listed to Joe and Carolyn Case, and that Carolyn Case paid the bill Oct. 16, 2013, in cash.

Jury trial begins for mother, father in child-tying case

The mother and father accused of tying up their 3-year-old daughter for up to 16 hours each day are both scheduled to stand trial next week.

Both Rebecca and Herbert Medley, along with Case, were charged with first-degree criminal abuse in September 2012. All three pleaded not guilty to the charges brought against them in the fall of 2012.

Rebecca Medley's jury trial is scheduled to begin Monday, Jan. 13 at 9 a.m. in Circuit Court, and Herbert Medley is set to stand trial Jan. 16 at 9 a.m.

The charge against them stems from a state police investigation during which Case reportedly told troopers that the 3-year-old was tied to her bed from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. each day. Case also acknowledged that the child was also tied to the bed for a two-hour nap, and spent an additional four hours tied up for discipline, according to the documents.

She was also tied up to a booster seat in a kitchen chair for up to an hour a day for discipline.

Case also told investigators that she was tied up because she was "getting out of bed and getting into things," and that she was trying to "get out of the residence when everyone was asleep."

Case added that the girl's mother, Rebecca Medley, "would tie [the girl] up very tightly and that [her] movement was very impaired and she was not able to escape."

The girl was being tied up from June 1 through Aug. 3, when a child protective services worker alerted the state police. Herbert Medley told police he knew about the girl being tied up but "felt he could not tell anyone because Case had threatened to kick them out of the residence."

Senior in ATV wreck improving

18-year-old has moved out of ICU

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

Megan Schell, the Anderson County High School senior injured in an ATV accident last Sunday, is steadily improving from broken bones and two collapsed lungs.

Schell

step before going home would be removing three tubes inserted to Megan's chest, she said.

Megan suffered head and back injuries and the broken collarbone, her sister said, but it is the lung damage that initially had doctors concerned.

"Both of her lungs collapsed," Sarah Schell said last Monday afternoon. "Her left lung was bleeding heavily but had improved as of [Monday] morning, but the right one has gotten worse. The doctors are really concerned about her contracting pneumonia."

Sarah Schell said the wreck happened after Megan Schell and some friends decided to celebrate Megan's 18th birthday on Dec. 28 by going to a nearby farm in Franklin County to ride ATVs.

Megan Schell was taken by private vehicle to Frankfort Regional Medical Center before being transferred to UK by ambulance.

Once there, tubes were inserted to help her breathe, but as of Dec. 30 Sarah Schell said the tubes had been removed.

"She's holding up really well," Schell, who mentioned that her sister is now constantly thirsty and craving bananas, said. "She knows what's going on and to have more visitors right now and see everyone who's supporting her."

Megan Schell has even walked down the hospital hallway, which is a big step to her recovery besides being able to cough properly, Schell said.

Brian Glass is currently a teacher and assistant softball coach at Anderson County Middle School.

Chris Glass was told that if he accepted the interim principal position, Brian Glass would have to be reassigned from his teaching position at the high school but would be able to remain head coach of the girls' softball team, according to allegations in the lawsuit.

It wasn't until after he accepted the job that Chris Glass was told that his brother had to be removed as softball coach, the suit alleges.

By then, the suit alleges, an assistant principal had been named to replace Chris Glass, leaving him without the option of returning to that job so his brother could remain on as coach.

Mitchell, through the district's attorney, filed an answer to the lawsuit in which she says Glass knows or should not he's not telling the truth.

"The complaint contains allegations which [Brian] Glass knows or should know are false," the response says, "which thereby renders his complaint frivolous, unreasonable and groundless."

Mitchell then says the lawsuit should be dismissed and that the district's legal fees and expenses should be reimbursed along with "such other relief as may be appropriate."

Brian Glass was reassigned based on the school district's interpretation of the Kentucky Education Reform Act, commonly referred to as the "anti-nepotism law." The law was enacted in 1990.

Kentucky Revised Statutes 160.380(2)(g) says, "No principal's relative shall be employed in the principal's school, except a relative who is not the principal's spouse and who was employed in the principal's school during the 1989-90 school year."

The statute also defines "relative" to include brothers. "We have consulted with two attorneys and have done all we can do," the school's athletic director Rick Sallee said at the time. "Many avenues were brought up and examined, but legally, the attorneys advised us to go this way. It is very unfortunate."

Brian Glass also alleges that the first time he was made aware that he would be out as coach and his teaching position at the high school was when he received a hand-delivered letter telling him he was being reassigned to a teaching position at the middle school and would be an assistant middle school softball coach.

Brian Glass goes on to allege that the school district continues to seek a new softball coach, which would have a "material and detrimental impact on Glass and on the ACHS girls' softball players and team — particularly with respect to entry into tournaments, college recruiting and player development."

The lawsuit contends that the player, listed in the lawsuit as A.B., has "finite opportunities to achieve and obtain personal and team successes ... to grow socially and athletically ... and to obtain exposure and cultivate the opportunity to attend and play college softball."

"The installation of a head coach other than Glass would materially impact A.B. and other similarly situated student softball players at ACHS."

In Mitchell's response, she says, "A.B., as a claimed student athlete, has no standing or right to a particular coach for an athletic program in which she has voluntarily chosen to participate."

In a separate motion filed by Mitchell to dismiss A.B. as a plaintiff, Mitchell says, "Plainly and simply, a student ... lacks any standing to request this court to address who is assigned as a coach. The assertion on behalf of A.B. is tantamount to seeking relief from the court as to the teacher she would have for Kentucky core content classes such as language arts, mathematics, history and science."

The lawsuit is scheduled for a motion hour Jan. 21 in Anderson Circuit Court.

Brian Glass coached the girls' team from 2001-13, according to the lawsuit. During that the team won two regional and six district titles. He was named the region's coach of the year in 2013.

Hundreds lost power during Monday's freeze

More than 300 Blue Grass Energy customers in Anderson affected

From staff reports

As temperatures dipped to new freezing lows, roughly 340 northern Anderson County Blue Grass Energy customers found themselves without power Monday morning.

More than 3,000 western Franklin County residents and 340 Anderson County customers lost power at about 8 a.m. Monday morning following a night of record-setting freezing temperatures for the region.

Blue Grass Energy spokesperson Denise Myers said Monday that an issue at a Franklin County substation on Bridgeport Road — which feeds into both Franklin County and Anderson County homes — was the cause of the outage.

Power was restored to affected Anderson County customers within the hour, around 10:45 a.m.

Myers said the usually cold weather may have had some bearing on the performance of

The extreme cold, with a forecasted high of 10 degrees Fahrenheit and a low of -2 for Monday, also resulted in Superintendent Sheila Mitchell calling off school for all Anderson County students both Monday, Jan. 6 and Tuesday, Jan. 7.

The two extra days off followed a two-week Christmas break that began Dec. 23. Classes were scheduled to resume Monday, Jan. 6.

Students would be making up the second "snow day" on Monday, Feb. 3, a day previously scheduled in the district calendar as a professional development day, according to Superintendent Sheila Mitchell.

in Obamacare, with 221 of that number enrolling in expanded Medicaid.

The statewide percentage was a little higher, with about 100,000 of the estimated 640,000 people eligible signing up. Roughly 75,000 signed up for expanded Medicaid, leaving only 25,000 Kentuckians actually signing up for Obamacare.

Although the deadline to have coverage as of Jan. 1 has passed, state officials said enrollees have until March 31 to sign up for coverage in 2014.

Here, there were a total of 34 people signed up who will not receive a taxpayer-subsidy to pay for their insurance, and 59 who will.

Of the 221 who signed up for expanded Medicaid, 23 are under 18.

Young people, typically referred to as "invincibles" by the media, were supposed to be a key to making Obamacare affordable.

In Anderson County the opposite has happened.

Locally, only seven people between 18 and 25 have signed up for Obamacare, and 29 have signed up for expanded Medicaid.

Those between the ages of 55 and 64 are the largest group of enrollees at 81. People ages 45-54 is next with 64 and those 35-44 are third at 62.

Last year's Anderson County Distinguished Young Woman winner Lauren Welsh crowns this year's Distinguished Young Woman, Lauren Fowler, during the local competition held in April. Fowler will be competing at state starting the week of Jan. 12.

Distinguished Young Woman competes at state

From staff reports

Lauren Fowler, a 17-year-old Anderson County High School senior, will be competing against 33 other young women in the Distinguished Young Woman state competition to be held Jan. 17-19 at the Singletary Center in Lexington.

Fowler, who won the local competition in Anderson County in April 2013, said she'll be leaving Lawrenceburg on Sunday, Jan. 12 and spending the week with a host family in Lexington as she meets other contestants and prepares for that weekend's competition.

Fowler said she's been preparing for the competition — which includes interview, talent, self-expression and fitness categories as well as academic performance — by keeping up with current events and news, topics sure to be the subject of interview questions.

A dancer since the age of 3, Fowler said she'll be performing a tap routine to the "Cups" song featured in the film "Pitch Perfect," the same talent she performed at the Anderson County competition last spring.

Fowler plans on attending the University of Kentucky to major in secondary education and become a high school English teacher. In addition to the state competition, there are a few smaller competitions during the week that Fowler said she may enter.

"If I come back with nothing, I'll be OK," Fowler said of the state Distinguished Young Woman competitions. "I know I'm going to have a great time getting to know the girls."

Fowler is the daughter of Lea and Neal Fowler of Lawrenceburg.

Tickets for Kentucky Distinguished Young Woman may be ordered by calling the Singletary Center at 859-257-8427 Monday through Friday. Tickets may also be purchased at the box office before each performance.

Country singer files for bankruptcy

Harrodsburg steakhouse to be sold in master commissioner's sale

By Janet Patton

Lexington Herald-Leader

Country singer Eddie Montgomery, one-half of the duo Montgomery Gentry, filed for individual bankruptcy Tuesday. In the filing in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Lexington, the Danville resident listed $13.4 million in liabilities and $1.9 million in assets.

His debts stem from millions owed on a failed restaurant in Harrodsburg, Eddie Montgomery's Steakhouse, which closed abruptly last May and is scheduled to be sold in a master commissioner's sale Jan. 10.

The sale was ordered, with the proceeds to be used to pay nearly $12.7 million in default loans to Central Bank & Trust of Lexington. Montgomery guaranteed the business loans, and the bankruptcy filing lists almost $8.4 million in claims, many related to the restaurant.

He and his wife, Tracy Nunan, opened the restaurant in 2009; they have since divorced.

A house on 273 acres in Boyle County co-owned by Montgomery and Nunan is listed for sale by Justice Real Estate for $1.25 million; among the property that the filing said will be surrendered to banks is an interest, valued at $1.16 million, in that home.

Montgomery — who tweets under the name @LuckymanEddie, referencing Montgomery Gentry's song Lucky Man — could not be reached for comment.

"Due to his divorce and the restaurant closure, Mr. Montgomery filed for Chapter 7 relief to address these ongoing issues," said Montgomery's attorney, Jamie Harris of DelCotto Law Group in Lexington. "It is very common with individuals dealing with divorce and business closure to have to seek out bankruptcy relief."

Montgomery, whose brother is country star John Michael Montgomery, and his music partner, Troy Gentry, had a string of hits as Montgomery Gentry from 1999 to 2008, including the Grammy-nominated Lucky Man, My Town, Gone and Daddy Won't Sell the Farm.

Every year from 2000 to 2009, Montgomery Gentry was nominated for best vocal duo at the Academy of Country Music Awards and the Country Music Association Awards, winning the trophies in 2000. They got their start playing Lexington bars, including Austin City Saloon and The Grapevine.

Their latest album was 2011's Rebels on the Run, with Jim Beam continuing a long-standing sponsorship. The group was on tour with the Charlie Daniels Band through December and is scheduled to take part later this month in a Caribbean cruise for country music fans. The lineup includes Wynonna Judd.

Leaky oil pipe better than more dead soldiers

Since it first popped up as an issue last year, I've been asked time and again when I will take an editorial stance on the proposed Bluegrass Pipeline. In fact, there are several folks who have flat-out demanded that I do so, either to draw me out as a pipeline proponent or hold me aloft as yet another member of the media to fall in line by opposing it. It's not that I haven't had an opinion about the topic; it's just that I typically reserve my praise and criticism for the actions — usually related to taxes — of local government and its offshoots. Besides, I've never been too keen on telling people what they can or can't do with the property they've worked and paid for, and certainly don't intend to start now.

Ben Carlson
Publisher

First know that I consider myself an environmentalist, but from the perspective of a hunter who wants a clean place for my family, along with the animals I intend to kill and eat. Polluted land and water get in the way of that. Second know that I'm more than aware that the proposed pipeline — just like the tens of thousands just like it that crisscross our nation — is fully capable of springing a leak at best, causing an environmental disaster at worst. Putting in this pipeline poses risks, even with oversight from agencies ranging from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to the Kentucky Department of Environmental Protection. Even the fellows who want to build it can't or have even tried to deny it. So we have to ask ourselves if it's worth it. My answer is yes, and for those who didn't just throw the paper in the trash, please allow me to explain.

For decades our nation has been sending its children into Middle Eastern war zones to ensure the free flow of oil. Call it a war on terror, protecting Israel or a war to free Kuwait and it all comes to the same thing: we're protecting oil flow because without it, our economy comes to a crashing halt. To do so, we've sacrificed the lives, limbs, eyes and futures of thousands of young men and women, along with trillions in national treasure. Right here in Lawrenceburg at least two families have buried a loved one who lost his life fighting terrorism, and plenty more who have received the most horrifying phone call a soldier's parent can receive — that their son or daughter has been seriously injured. Many have returned home from their duties physically unscathed, but talk to them as I have and realize that the scars they bear are forever buried deeply in their hearts and minds. Need a visual reminder of how rotten these wars have been? Visit the Healing Field and look at the dozens of flags that serve as memorials to Kentucky soldiers killed in the war on terror. Is that reason enough to have a pipeline that supports fracking operations that can — if the federal government stays out of the way — allow us to ditch or dependency on foreign oil? You bet it is, and those who say otherwise need to drag their children or grandchildren to the nearest recruiter's office and let them carry a rifle into the next oil-based war that comes along. Or better yet, pick up a rifle and go themselves. Will this pipeline or fracking or any other energy source end the hatred those in the Middle East have for us? Absolutely not. Folks there hate us for a variety of purposes, but our meddling in their nations is rooted mostly in our need of their oil. When the day comes we have our own oil, most of that meddling can come to a halt. As can the insanity of sacrificing our children and treasure to those who would prefer to see us dead. Is this the popular or easy stance to take on this issue? No, and it will likely cause me a fair amount of grief along with more than a few subscriptions. If that's the response of those opposed to the pipeline, fine, I can live with that. I wonder, though, if those who fret more over the possibility of a leaky oil pipe than the lives of other people's children will be able to do the same.

County in need of homeless shelter

To the editor:

We are contacting you out of concern for the need of a homeless shelter in our community. It breaks our hearts to think that anybody would be homeless or hungry, period, but with the weather being so extremely cold, it makes it even harder to deal with. So many of us have been blessed with a warm home yet there's no telling how many of our loved ones, family or friends is doing without. Is there anybody in this community who would be willing to donate a building to be used during the winter and summer months (at least) so we can help our own? If there is anyone interested in helping us, please contact Jenny at 598-0449 or by email at HelpOurOwn2014@gmail.com.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone that helped make the Community Christmas Outreach Meal at Open Hands Pantry a huge success. It is because of your generosity we were able to serve 458-plus people. Thanks to Walmart for providing all of our desserts and other businesses for your financial help as well as other people who donated food, cooked, delivered, advertised and served for us on this day. It is when people come together we are able to accomplish great things and get a true blessing. May God bless you.

Avoid winter's chill with seedlings

Brrrr! A good time to remember that spring is only 70 days away. Think of it as only 10 Wednesdays! It seems shorter that way. In the meantime, think warm! Watch some summer fun DVDs and steer clear of winter ones, like "Fargo." Though I come from some hearty German and Norwegian stock, I love my wood stove! There is no warmer heat, in my humble opinion. Well, OK, corn or pellet stoves put out more BTUs. As an added bonus, the warm wood stove keeps the cat off my lap. I keep a cast iron kettle on the top that holds only water and scented oil. Forget the plug-ins! This makes the house smell good and puts a little moisture back in the air so I quit shocking the cat. I also make 15-bean soup on top. I even have a cast iron thing for cornbread! Though most do their baking before Christmas, this is the perfect time to fire up the oven. A slow cooked roast, baked at a low temperature, gives you tender meat and hours of warmth. Cinnamon buns, cookies and pies work too! They make the house smell really good and always put a smile on your face. Baked apples are a real treat. Even if you get some with not much flavor, cutting them in half, removing the core and adding a pad of butter with cinnamon sprinkled on top is absolutely delicious. If you are craving a little green to grow in the house, don the coveralls and go prune some forsythia. Bring them in the house, place in a vase with water and watch them bloom. Dogwood and honeysuckle will work too! You should have a basket full of seed catalogs by now. Make a list or just use a black magic marker to circle selections and page numbers as you thumb through them. Then, add up your bill. If they're not heirlooms, you'll be buying them year after year. Saving seeds saves you money. I'm about ready to start some seeds inside. I may even break out a germinator. It's simple to make and use. Just lay out a paper towel, spray it lightly with water, lay out a row of seeds in the middle and then roll it like a cigar. Use bread ties to close the top and bottom. Now use a clear cup or glass to hold it upright. Add a little water to the glass. The paper towel acts like a wick to bring the water up and keep the paper towel moist. In a few days, depending on how warm the house has been, unroll it and see if the seeds have sprouted. Make sure you have your trays of soil ready for plantings. You can also just

Do you know who owns these welcome signs?

City searches for owners of deteriorating Lawrenceburg signs

Two welcome signs are in need of, repairs or simply need to be taken down. You may have seen them on North Main Street or Broadway. They're old and faded, and a little worse for wear. In my opinion, they're in need of some tender loving and care. And I'm not even sure that would solve the problem. I thought it was the city's responsibility to maintain these two welcome signs, so I dashed off a quick email to

Meaghan Downs
Staff writer

City Clerk Robbie Hume. Apparently, my assumption was false. After all, you know what they say happens when you assume. The problem, Hume said, is that no one at city hall knows who owns the faded, rusting signs that greet newcomers to Lawrenceburg. Hume said he believes the signs — freestanding signs featuring smaller metal badges of Anderson County civic organizations — had been welcoming residents to Lawrenceburg for more than forty years. There were three of these signs standing last fall: one on Broadway, one on North Main Street by Carlton Drive, and a third on South Main Street en route to Frankfort. According to Hume, the city took down the third sign on South Main Street in the fall of last year because the sign had been damaged and had started to lean over the roadway. Some of the civic groups featured on the signs include Beta Sigma Phi, Anderson Humane Society, Lions Club, Lawrenceburg Industrial Foundation for Anderson County, Rotary International, Anderson County 4-H, and several others. The two remaining signs are located on Broadway and Main Street, which are state roads, Hume said. The city has contacted the state transportation department to inquire about documentation, but has not found any record of who owns the signs. "There's something that's going to have to be done with them, obviously," Hume said, when asked about the worsening condition of the welcome signs. As far as he knows, Hume said, the civic organization signs were created as a result of a fundraiser several decades ago. The city has called many of the civic groups featured on the signs, Hume said, and although a few recall the fundraiser occurring to establish the sign, no one seems to know who's currently responsible for maintaining the signs welcoming visitors to Lawrenceburg. "Ultimately, I think the city's not going to let them deteriorate," Hume said. "I think we'll do something with them in the spring." That may include new paint or other repairs, but will most likely result in the signs being torn down, Hume said. Many of the civic organizations may not have the funds to do a complete overhaul on their featured metal signage, he said, and the city doesn't want to start getting in the business of selling signs for the space. Although Hume said the city is not currently responsible for maintaining the two civic group organization signs, it did take over the maintenance of two prominent stone "Welcome to Lawrenceburg" signs on either end of the US 127 Bypass from the Chamber of Commerce. Hume said the city hasn't received a flood of calls or complaints about the signs on Broadway and North Main Street, but he'd like to know who's responsible for maintenance. See DOWNS, Page A5

Redistricting means new precincts for voters

For the past several years our office has had numerous questions regarding the process and why it has taken so long. I am going to attempt to explain it as only I know how — short and simple. Anyone wanting the longer, technical version can give me a call at 839-3041.

For more than three years, we have been dealing with the redistricting process.

As of Thursday, Jan. 2, Anderson was ninth out of 120 counties to receive approval from the State Board of Elections and the Legislative Research Commission.

Every 10 years a census is required by the federal government. Once it is complete, according to state law, the Fiscal Court must appoint a reapportionment committee made up of three residents of Anderson County. Each must be from separate districts within the county. The County Clerk serves as a nonvoting member of the committee to provide requested information and assist the committee. This committee worked with the Bluegrass Area Development District using maps and data from the Census Bureau and moved the existing magisterial district lines so that there were an equal number of residents in each district. According to case law, there couldn't be more than a 10 percent deviation in population from the smallest district to the largest district.

After several meetings, the committee took its recommendation to the Fiscal Court for final approval and vote in 2011. This was done in an ordinance form and became the law of the county.

Once the reapportionment process was complete on a county level, the process then went to the federal and state level. The federal congressional lines were adjusted in a timely manner; however, the redistricting process on the state level for Senate and House districts took longer to complete.

This process should have been done in the January 2012 Session, but due to complications was only finalized in mid 2013 during a special session.

During this time period the Anderson County Board of Elections met as required by law to begin the process of changing the 14 precincts lines to fit within their newly drawn magisterial district lines.

Under the guidelines the board must adjust the registered voter totals in each precinct so that they are equal as possible. These changes were voted on by the Board of Elections in late 2011.

The next step was to create new maps with detailed written boundary descriptions of each precinct, as well as a precinct establishment order and send them to the State Board of Elections and the Legislative Research Commission for approval. However, this process was held up for more than a year while the state legislature passed a plan. Once redistricting was approved by the State Legislature in late 2013, the approval process resumed and after about two months, and Anderson County was approved.

In the following months our office will move those voters affected by the changes into their new precincts within the state database. Notices will then be sent to those affected of the changes in precincts and voting locations. The new map has been placed on our website. As always, you can call the county clerk's office at 502-839-3041 or visit us on Facebook. You can also view our website at www.andersoncountyclerk.ky.gov.

I think it's important for visitors to see that the people who live in Lawrenceburg care about their town, and the signs should reflect that. Of course, there are larger problems at work in the county, and I don't disagree. Maybe you think these two signs are small things, mole hills compared to mountains. But you only get one first impression, and I don't believe rusting signs should be the lasting one. I'm proud to call Lawrenceburg my home, and I want others to feel the same.

That's a sentiment I believe most people would agree with, including city officials.

"We want to put our best impression out when people come to town," Hume said.

New year, new goals for Lawrenceburg residents

From getting back in the gym to spending more quality time with family, many people choose the first week of the new year to set new goals and New Year resolutions to kick off 2014.

We asked several people out and about in Lawrenceburg what their goals for the new year are, if they've already broken them for 2014, or if they think they'll be able to stick to their newly created resolutions until Dec. 31, 2014.

ACHS SOPHOMORES

Resolution for Drueke in 2014: "To do more. I'm at least going to travel some."
Will she keep her resolution?: "Yes."

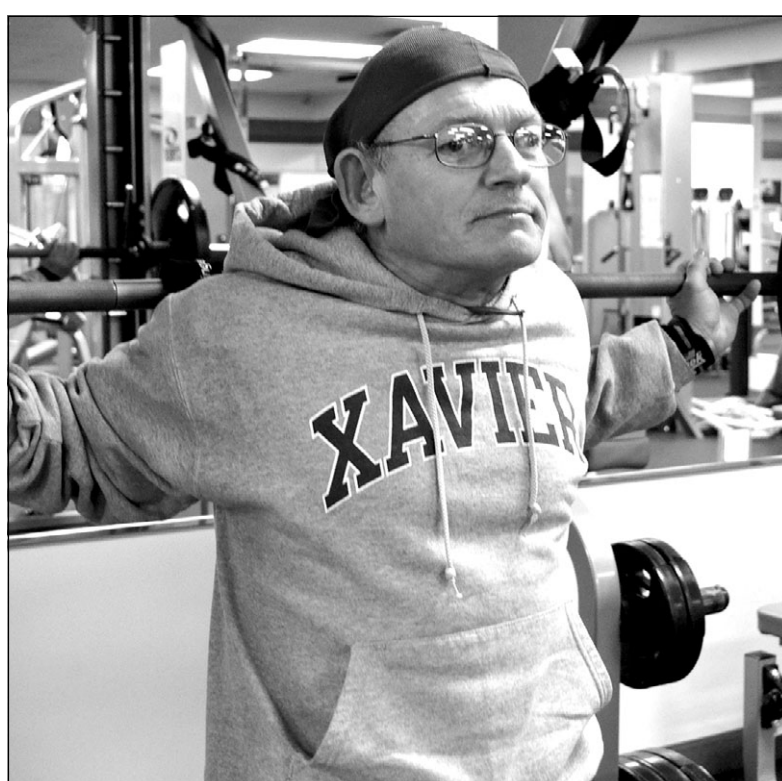

TYLER AND CAITLYN SMITH

Resolution for 2014: "We've basically cut out sweets and limiting proportions," Tyler said. Both said they'd like to start running again.
Confident they'll keep they're resolutions?: "Hopefully, with the encouragement of each other," Caitlyn said.

MARSHA DOSS

Resolution for Doss in 2014: "My No. 1 goal is to be less controlling and live under God's will and direction."
Has she broken her resolution yet?: "I've probably broken it in the first 5 minutes."

JEFF CODY

Cody, a Frankfort bodybuilder and trainer at the Lawrenceburg Snap Fitness, gives his resolution for 2014: "Shooting for a Pro card [qualifications to be paid for bodybuilding appearances] and 'getting ready for body building nationals in Atlanta in November 2014.'"
Will he keep his resolutions?: "I hope so. I'm pretty dedicated."

KIM LEWIS

Resolution for 2014: "To prosper and do better."
Does she plan to keep her resolution?: "Yes."

Kentucky gets $1.7 million federal grant to reduce health risks

Grant to focus on obesity, chronic illness with special attention on students

By Melissa Patrick
Kentucky Health News

Kentucky has received a five-year $1.7 million grant from the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to help Kentuckians reduce risk factors that lead to obesity and chronic disease.

Most of the money will be used for preventive measures such as physical activity, weight loss and better nutrition, and programs to prevent and control diabetes, heart disease and stroke with a focus on high blood pressure.

The plan will put "special emphasis" on coordinated health efforts in schools, according to a state news release.

The state Department of Public Health, which received the grant, is partnering with the Department of Education and other groups to help ensure efficient use of resources and reliable sharing of information, Health Commissioner Stephanie Mayfield said.

"Schools will be a vital partner in this project," she said in the release. "We will also be working with Kentucky Department of Education to develop a system that will assist schools in helping children with certain chronic diseases to improve health, reduce absenteeism and have a better chance to succeed academically."

Kentucky has one of the highest childhood obesity rates in the country. It ties Mississippi for the highest percentage of youth in grades 9 to 12 that are obese (18 percent) and has the third highest percentage of children ages 10 to 17 who are obese (21 percent). It was one of 32 states to receive such grants.

Kentucky ranks 44th in overall state health according to the 2012 America's Health Rankings by the United Health Foundation. It has the nation's highest rates of smoking and preventable hospitalizations, and ranks in the top 10 in obese adults, diabetes among adults and cardiovascular deaths.

Junior fundraises for educational international trip

Needs to raise $7,500 by April for European travel

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

Eventually Anderson County High School junior Harley Bakken, 17, wants to join Doctors without Borders.

But for now, she's trying to raise a several thousands of dollars to visit seven European countries in 20 days through the non-profit organization People to People.

Bakken was selected for the People to People Student Ambassador Program, and needs to raise $7,500 by April 1 in order to be able to go overseas for the first time.

As a student ambassador for People to People, Bakken said she'll be able to see European sites, but will also receive a semester's worth of high school credit as well as college credit through the program.

The purpose behind People to People, Bakken said, is to promote peace and to give students a sense of global knowledge through international travel.

"People to People was originally established in 1956 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, charged with the mission of personal diplomacy and building peace through understanding," according to People to People's website. "In 1961, the non-profit People to People International joined forces with Ambassador Groups Inc., a specialized group of travel and educational service providers who would develop and deliver extraordinary programs."

Bakken, like several other high school students she knows, received a letter from People to People in the mail in September 2013. She attended an orientation meeting the following month at the University of Louisville to get more information, and was sold on People to People's mission.

"They only accept 40 people [for the Louisville travel group], and luckily I am one of those 40," Bakken, the daughter of Katherine Bakken and Steve Anderson of High school junior Harley Bakken, 17, stands with her People to People materials. Bakken is hoping to raise $7,500 by the spring to fund her European trip to seven different countries through a non-profit international program.

Lawrenceburg, said. "I'm really excited."

Bakken, a member of the International Club (formerly the French Club), Gifted and Talented, Beta Club and FCCLA, said she's most excited for France, a place she's always wanted to visit. Bakken, who said she loves to cook, especially wants to see where Julia Child learned her craft at the renowned Le Cordon Bleu culinary school.

But before she can travel to France, England, Germany, the Netherlands, Austria, Belgium and Switzerland through People to People International, she'll need to raise the money to get there.

Bakken said she plans on babysitting and cleaning houses, as well as asking Lawrenceburg businesses, to help her reach her goal. Along with seeking assistance from friends and family, Bakken said she'll be asking high school clubs like the high school's International Club if they wouldn't mind sponsoring a dance with ticket proceeds going toward the trip.

All the money Bakken raises, she said, will go toward paying for tuition, airfare, meals and other program expenses. Donations received will not go toward Bakken's own personal spending money, she said.

"They were clear that this is a program and not a vacation," Bakken said of the People to People trip, which also features time with a German host family and a small service project.

In return donors will receive a postcard in the mail from one of Bakken's international destinations, or maybe a small souvenir, she said.

She's optimistic about raising enough money by an April 2014 deadline, and about her future as a doctor.

Bakken, who told her parents at age 8 that she wanted to be a doctor, said she'll be visiting Washington, DC, in February for the National Academy of Future Physicians conference.

But the DC trip is not what's at the forefront of Bakken's mind, or what she talks about with friends and family right now.

"Every time I get the opportunity to talk about [People to People], I talk about it," she said.

Bakken has set up a fundraising account at GoFundMe.com for her upcoming trip through People to People International. If interested in supporting Bakken, visit <http://www.gofundme.com/5y8z2w>, contact Bakken through e-mail at harley.michelle.bakken@gmail.com or reach her by phone at 502-598-1144.

CIVIL WAR RE-ENACTMENTS CRANE FAMILY AFFAIR

THE WAY WE WERE

50 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Jan. 9, 1964

A registered three-day-old Guernsey calf reported missing on the Garrett Johnson farm Tuesday on the Anderson-Franklin County line was found Tuesday night.

David Gaines, 17, son of Lloyd Gaines, a tenant on the farm, missed his calf when he got home from school Tuesday and notified local authorities, however, when Deputy J.W. Carlton went to the home to investigate, he found the calf had been found a short distance from the barn.

Mrs. Jack N. Ervin suffered a knee injury in a fall near the Kerr Funeral Home in Lexington Saturday when she slipped on ice. Her knee was placed in a brace.

The Western High Eagles defeated Mackville in the first game of the new year by a score of 63 to 39.

Mrs. Andrew Bird was to fill the position in the English Department of Anderson High School, left vacant by the resignation of Mrs. Roger Ross, who was leaving to move to Paris, Ky. with her husband. Mr. Ross was to manage a farm in Bourbon County.

Police officer Jimmy Hawkins fell on Main Street Monday morning and injured his shoulder.

Deaths

Captain Bruce Cole Gash, 27, died at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Lexington after a long illness. Survivors included his wife, Mrs. Patsy Murphy Gash, a daughter, Leslie Beth Gash, his father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Gash.

Ethel Barnett Baldwin, 37, died from an accidental shooting incident. Survivors included her daughters, Mrs. Tommy Murphy, Rose Mary and Debbie Baldwin.

Paul Matthew Edgar, 58, a farmer, died on his farm near Alton Station of an apparent heart attack. He was a member of Pigeon Fork Baptist Church and a World War II veteran. His wife, Alpha Samples Edgar, a brother and three sisters survived him.

Marie Theresa Kelly Mizner died at her home in Shelbyville. Survivors included her husband, Harry L. Mizner, and two children, Dorothy and Donald Mizner.

Charles R. Baxter, 63, died at his home in Louisville. Survivors included a son, Charles R. Baxter, 63, two brothers and a sister.

Nettie Strange Bast, 62, died at the Woodford hospital. Survivors included her husband, William Porter Bast, and a foster son, Dennie Wayne Kinder.

William Oscar Thompson, 81, retired farmer, died in a Shelbyville rest home after a long illness. He lived in the Birdie community for many years. Survivors included his wife, Eula Brown Thompson; and two sons, Gilbert and Hollis Thompson.

Edna Gorham Huffman, 68, widow of Joseph Huffman, died at Central Baptist Hospital. She was a sister to the late Ben W. Gorham of Lexington.

W. J. Smith retired from the U.S. Post Office after 35 years at the helm.

"It's been a good experience . . . the post office gave Nancy and me what we wanted most . . . an opportunity to stay home," said the postmaster on the eve of his retirement.

He was treated to a cake that looked like a letter with his name and address on it.

Mrs. Totsy Evan was named "officer in charge" until a permanent postmaster could be named. She had been serving as postmaster at Malone, small community in Morgan County.

A story on the Bearfacts page, written by students from Anderson High School, featured Bobby Joe Crane and his love of civil war re-enactments. Richie Holmes wrote Crane's story.

Bobby Joe's whole family was involved in his hobby. They all attended re-enactments in Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana. We started going to them in October 1979. "My fifth grade teacher got me interested in them," said the ACHS senior.

"The biggest and my favorite was the S.V.R. Battle of Perryville in Perryville KY. It lasted a whole week and there were about 500 people in attendance, not including those just there to watch."

Deaths

Margaret Evelyn Baxter Barnett, 63, Route 5, died at her home after an illness. She was formerly employed by the American Efrid Thread Mill and retired from the Community Towel Service of Louisville. Survivors included her husband, John Sea Barnett, a daughter, Carolyn Robinson, and three sisters.

Sidney S. Corn, 70, died at a nursing home in Corbin. Survivors included three sisters, Cordie Pinkston, Zelma Corn, Hattie Hellard and two brothers, Earl and Elmer Corn.

Mrs. Mayzie Loretta Trospier Hoskins, a school teacher in Knox and Anderson County for more 31 years, died at Woodford Memorial Hospital. The 87-year-old former teacher, affectionately called "Miss Mayzie" by many had taught in the county at Searcy, Kays, Klondike and Goodlett before retiring from Rutherford in 1966. She substituted 12 years after official retirement. Survivors included a foster son, Sgt. Robert W. Crawford of the Lawrenceburg Police Dept., two sisters and two brothers.

Wilbert B. Howser, 82, died at the Frankfort hospital. His wife, Della Howser, and a son, Robert B. Howser, survived the retired farmer.

Myrtle Bush Thurman, 80, died at the U K Medical Center. Survivors included a daughter, Kitty Bradford; three sisters, Mildred Gill, Arnetta Harvey, Onita Strayhorn; three brothers, Tillare, Frank and Nolan Boler.

Erica Jean Cheri Shouse, 4-week-old daughter of Donna Shouse and Christopher Perry, died Dec. 4. Additional survivors include Wesley, Sean and twin brother Eric.

ANTIOCH CHRISTIAN CHURCH IN THE OLD DAYS

Young girls Gladys Drury and Ruby Satterly were standing in front of the Antioch Christian Church located near the Anderson/Washington County line in Washington County. This picture was probably taken between 60 and 75 years ago. Both are now deceased. Notice the two doors on the church. The women went in one and the men the other. That's the way they sat inside too. Gladys later married Bud Martin. Ruby later married Orear Barnett. Photo was submitted by Janet Robinson.

The five-year-olds with their leader Cindy Couch, assistant leader Julie Cubert and two parents, Robin Webb and Tina Litkenhus stopped by more than 30 homes around town and presented the residents gifts "with smiles on their faces," said Leader Couch.

The route was random and they just stopped at any house along the way.

Gifts and the recipients included, Betty McBrayer, a UK hat; Sean Sutton, golf balls; Valerie Casey, mini spatula; Lisa Goodlett, candle; Louise Camic, corsage; Teddie Kiser, free hair cut; Carolyn and Nikki Paris, two Lee's chicken dinners; James Maggard, muffins; Buddy Peach, muffins; Larry Powers, BBQ gift certificate; Lanell Taylor, Hardee's drinks; Vicki Walker and Alisha, coloring books and stickers; Jeff and Tabitha Boone, pizza cutter; Michael Hicks, 18 holes of golf; Wesley Struebing, free hair cut; Jeremy and Erick Proctor, Teddie bears; Other recipients included Ashley Rakestraw, Rachel Barker, Todd Piatt, Mike Swails and Billy Whitenack.

Deaths

Walter Drury, 86, sixth district magistrate from 1957 to 1981, died. In 1973, the farmer and 20-year employee of the Dean and Shirk Thread Co. received the Anderson County meritorious Service Award at the annual Farm-City Tour. Survivors included three daughters, Marietta Duncan, Becky Peach and Linda Morgan.

Lelia Carter Birdwhistell, 90, widow of John E. Birdwhistell, died at Heritage Hall Care Center. She was a homemaker. Survivors included a son, Glenn Birdwhistell, three daughters, Ruby Young, Helen Short and Judy Stevens, five brothers and three sisters.

The history of Alton Christian Church was featured in a story. The church was built in 1872, having been moved from a site off what is now Highway 151, where it was known as the Buck Lick Christian Church.

When the Buck Lick church was moved to the current site, its name was changed to the Christian Church of Rough and Ready. That's what the Alton community was called at the time.

The Rough and Ready name was in honor of Zachary Taylor, a nicknamed he acquired for his exploits as a general in the army. Taylor later became the 12th president of the United States. When the town's name changed to Alton in 1876, the name of the church also changed.

Diabetes group to meet Jan. 14

From staff reports

The Anderson County Health Department will host its diabetes support program next Tuesday, Dec. 10, according to a news release.

It will meet in the health department's community room from 6:30-7:30 p.m.

The department kicked off the revitalization of its diabetes support group on Nov. 12.

The new program will replace the diabetes support group that previously met every month for education about diabetes prevention and treatment, along with sharing of diabetic recipes, and listening to information from guest speakers.

The health department is located at 1180 Glensboro Road, Lawrenceburg.

"According to a 2010 Kentucky Diabetes Fact Sheet, the burden of diabetes in Kentucky and in the nation is large and growing," according to a press release from the health department.

The diabetic support session is open to pre-diabetics and diabetics of all ages, as well as caregivers, event organizers said.

For more information, contact the Anderson County Health Department at 502-839-4566 or Brenda Haydon at 502-696-4857.

High school marching band students selected for percussion ensemble

From staff reports

Anderson County Marching Band members Michael Noble and Jesse Carter were recently selected to perform with Tates Creek Indoor Ensemble, a premier percussion ensemble, for the 2013-2014 winter performance season, according to a news release.

Made up of high school and collegiate students ranging in age from 17-23, TCIE is one of the premier percussion ensembles in the country competing in regional, national and world class divisions, according to a press release. TCIE competes against other Percussion groups from across the country as well as internationally (Japan, Thailand, Europe etc).

According to Michael's father Michael Noble, both high school musicians went through three rounds grueling auditions over a four day period with final auditions being held in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Noble and Carter are currently seeking local sponsorships to help fund membership fees to participate in the percussion ensemble. For more information on sponsorships, contact Mike Noble at noble1088@gmail.com or call 502-759-2109.

First half of basketball season brought no surprises

It seems strange to be already talking about the mid-point of the basketball season, but that is about where we are this first full week of the year.

The high school district tournaments get underway across Kentucky on Feb. 24, meaning this is the sixth week in a 12-week season. You do the math.

At Anderson County, there were high expectations when the season opened the first week of December. The first month of the season indicated that those expectations were warranted and still are. But there have also been some doses of reality served to the Anderson teams.

First, look at the Anderson girls' team. The Lady Bearcats were a near-unanimous pick as the state's top team when the season began. That was about as predictable as saying it would get cold in January.

Anderson had nearly everybody back from a state semi-finalist team that went 34-2 and boasted a pair of Division I players in Eriel McKee and Makenzie Cann. No other team in Kentucky could make those claims.

But this is 2014, a year with more state championship contenders than most in recent years. The Lady Bearcats could very well present the school with its first state championship in any KHSAA-sanctioned sport. They are good. Very good. Maybe even great in my vocabulary where the term is rarely applied to a team.

At 11-2, the Lady Bearcats are probably about where they should be. Fans wanted 13-0, but the schedule was brutal in December and it was a time of experimentation. It was probably unrealistic to think Anderson would go unbeaten, especially seeing that Columbus (Ind.) North, a national Top 25 team at times, was on the schedule. But it was fun to contemplate.

From this corner, the Lady Bearcats have done nothing to diminish the high hopes. They have beaten regional favorites Allen County-Scottsville and Owensboro Catholic handily. They ripped LaRue County, another Top 10 team at the time, to shreds. Even the lone loss to a Kentucky team, Elizabethtown, came on a night when Anderson suddenly went cold in the final five minutes.

But E-town also underlined that the Lady Bearcats have little inside presence. It is not necessarily a bad thing because Anderson can create more mismatches than most opponents.

Conventional wisdom says the key to Anderson's season is how well the Lady Bearcats shoot from the outside. That makes sense because when the Lady Bearcats get on a roll and are heating it up from the three-point line, there is probably no team in Kentucky that can beat them.

But outside shooting can come and go. It is a given that Anderson has some great shooters, but they are human beings. That means there will be nights when the goal looks like the ocean and other nights when it looks like the eye of a needle. That is just how it is and if anyone knew exactly why, he would never have to work another day in his life.

It says here, though, the keys to Anderson's state championship hopes are staying healthy and staying hungry. Anderson has not had a major injury so far and for the most part, the Lady Bearcats have been ready to devour whoever is next in their path. However, there have been some games where they allowed a team to hang around a little long for comfort.

Overall, though, the Anderson girls are doing just fine. If you have not seen them in action, you are the one missing out. Suffice it to say this is not the girls' basketball of countless turnovers and jump balls like we saw 30 years ago. These ladies can play hoops.

While even getting back to the state tournament is not a given - regional foe Simon Kenton was

Anderson ranked at top, Flyers third in latest poll

By John Herndon
Sports editor

A showdown with a Top 5 team highlights the upcoming week for the Anderson County girls' basketball team.

The Lady Bearcats tangle with another of Kentucky's better teams when they entertain Franklin County tonight, Jan. 8, at 7:45 p.m. The game is part of a triple-header between the teams and will be preceded by the freshman teams at 5:15 and junior varsity at 6:30.

In the Rating the State rankings that appeared in Monday's Lexington Herald-Leader, Anderson was tied with Elizabethtown for the No. 1 ranking while Franklin County came in at No. 3.

While most observers felt Franklin would be strong this season, few picked the Lady Flyers to be among the state's top five and sitting atop the 11th Region rankings.

Sophomore forward Malaka Frank and senior guard Nannilea White both average about 11 points a game to lead the Lady Flyers, who come in at 10-3. However, three other players, Rebecca Cook, Princess Stewart and Anderson County's Eriel McKee (32) blocks a shot by Spencer County seventh-grader Alyssa Howie during Saturday's game in Taylorsville.

Dasia Kilbourne all average just under 10 points a contest.

Friday, Anderson travels to Collins, which has struggled trying to replace Aaliyah Wells, now at Morehead State. The Titans have won just two of seven games and their five losses have been by an average of 25 points a night.

"Collins is a district game, so we will have to pay special attention to that one," Anderson coach Tony Kays says.

Even though Anderson will be heavily favored against Collins, Kays says the game will provide a bit of a test for the Lady Cats. "We have to come out and be ready to play," he said. "We can't just turn it off and on and pick out when we are going to play."

Tuesday, the Lady Bearcats entertain Mercer County, the team that came the closest in the regular season to breaking Anderson's 26-game win streak last year. While Mercer suffered some graduation losses off that team, they have some solid players, led by junior guard Heidi Huffman.

The Lady Titans have been solid, however, going 10-4 and establishing themselves as a legitimate contender in the 12th Region.

Lady Bearcats back from vacation

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

TAYLORSVILLE - If every American worker returned from a vacation like the Anderson County girls' basketball team did Saturday, the economy would probably be robust in no time flat.

Playing another team - albeit one that was terribly over-matched - for the first time in 11 days, Anderson held Spencer scoreless for the second and third quarters of a 70-8 rout.

"We really wanted to play," said Anderson senior Jessica Rice.

That was obvious as the Lady Bearcats left no doubt they were not going to waste any time getting back into the flow.

"They wanted to play a game and I guess that showed today," said Anderson coach Tony Kays. "I was really pleased with how they played as a team. When you get in a game like this, when you are way ahead early, you can start thinking as an individual - 'How am I going to score more points?' - but we passed the ball and distributed it. We rebounded well and defended well."

And even though there

was a layoff, there was some team bonding over the Christmas break. Rice and classmate Makenzie Cann took a trip to Disney World.

"We just rode rides," Cann laughed.

Saturday, the Lady Bearcats just rode what Spencer County might have thought was an 18-wheeler speeding down Interstate 64, perhaps with a howitzer mounted behind. The Lady Bearcats had one string of scoring 56 straight points.

You read that right. Fifty-six consecutive points.

After Spencer seventh-grader Alyssa Howie drove the lane for the Lady Bears' first basket, making it 7-2, Anderson, less than 100 seconds in, Anderson put a security lock on the Spencer basket. By the time Spencer scored again, a jumper from senior Mackenzie Myers in the first minute of the fourth quarter, Anderson was in front 63-2.

The Lady Bearcat press, which had puzzled Spencer's young guards, had long been put away. The Anderson starters had taken seats on the bench midway through the third quarter.

"Our focus was to get them some rest physically and mentally," Kays said of the long layoff. "I am still a little concerned. We have a couple of kids with some tendinitis in their knees, but we will be fine."

Anderson had played without starting point guard Destiny Stewart and top back court reserve Corrin Robinson, both of whom were nursing soreness in their knees. Junior Marissa Walker stepped in and got her first career start and the Lady Bearcats did not miss a beat in running their record to 11-2.

Halfway through the fourth quarter, Kays called time to make sure every player in the scorebook got in the game.

Spencer County, which started two middle-schoolers, fell to 3-10.

Cann tallied 25 points to lead all scorers while Eriel McKee added 10 for the Lady Bearcats.

Boys' basketball to have biggest week of season

By John Herndon
Sports editor

No hype is needed for the next two dates on the Anderson County boys' basketball schedule.

It's really very simple: Shelby County on Friday and Collins on Tuesday are the biggest regular-season games on the Bearcats' schedule. It's not even close.

Both are 30th District foes and at least earning a split is imperative for a good seed in the district tournament at the end of the year. Win both and the Bearcats only need to beat a young, but improving, Spencer County team for the No. 1 seed.

Friday, the Bearcats travel to Shelby County, a team that had won three straight entering this week.

The Rockets stumbled out of the gate dropping 10 of their first 11 before scoring convincing wins over Covington Scott, Grant County and Louisville Collegiate.

Before the season, Shelby was considered by many a team to keep an eye on in the Eighth Region. While the Rockets have no superstars, they do have size and athleticism. "They are the most complete team in the region," Anderson head coach Glen Drury said at the time. "They don't have any glaring weaknesses."

Senior guard Kipp Moore can score and 6-foot-6 sophomore James Gordon has enormous potential. Another sophomore, 5-8 point guard Malik Manica, makes the Rockets go.

Tuesday, the Bearcats head to Collins for a game that was rescheduled from last Friday.

Collins has lived up to the expectations that come with being the pre-season regional favorite. If anything, the Titans have established themselves as a more solid pick than the one that got a shaky nod as the best in the pre-season.

Collins ended last week at 11-2 with the losses being to defending state champion Madison Central and to Bullitt East. Collins put up an impressive 59-41 win over perennial power Mason County in a game played at Banker's Life Fieldhouse in Indianapolis on Saturday. Senior forward Ralphie Stone has put the Titans on his back and has become a quality player.

The Titans have no major college stars but have several quality athletes, including senior guard Lawson Page, who quarterbacked the school's football team to the Class 4A state championship.

Anderson, however, could give Collins some major troubles. The teams surprisingly had just one common opponent through the weekend, East Ridge.

Collins defeated East Ridge, 54-51, on Dec. 20 at Swan County while Anderson defeated East Ridge 59-45 the following night in the Kentucky Bank Challenge.

Collins took the early lead in the district race with a 50-48 win over Shelby early in the season, but the Titans were just getting their football players back when that one was played.

Cox, Rose get more all-state honors

Harvey honorable mention

By John Herndon
Sports editor

Anderson County football seniors Ross Cox and Joe Rose received more statewide recognition when they were named second team all-state by the Associated Press last week.

Cox, a wide receiver, had previously been selected to the Lexington Herald-Leader's Class of the Commonwealth team and had been a third team selection on the Courier-Journal all-state team.

Rose, a kicker, had also been named third team all-state on the Courier Journal all-state team in voting by the state's coaches.

Anderson defensive lineman Darius Harvey was also named as an honorable mention all-state by the AP, which was awarded by the state's media and was announced on Jan. 2. The Anderson News is not a member of the Associated Press.

Harvey had also been an honorable mention on the Courier-Journal team.

File photo

Joe Rose drills a field goal against Collins during the 2013 season.

Rose said he was surprised to learn of his honors during the Christmas break.

"I was very surprised with the honors due to the talent level of kickers in the state of Kentucky," Rose said in a message from his Facebook account.

Cox, however, had been getting some statewide recognition due to his versatility. He ran for 10 touchdowns, caught 10 passes for scores, returned three kicks for touchdowns and had an interception for a score. He had 2,285 all-purpose yards on the season.

"To be honest, I was relieved to see that my hard work had not gone unnoticed," Cox said, also in a message from his Facebook account. "Making first team (all-state) was a goal of mine but it wasn't a main goal. I would trade it in for a state championship any day."

Rose agreed. "Being selected all-state was a goal of mine, but the primary goal was and always had been to help the Anderson County Bearcats win a state championship," he said.

Rose became known as one of the most accurate kickers in Kentucky, missing just one extra point in 62 attempts this year. He also hit 8-of-11 field goal attempts this year.

"The key to developing accuracy is focus and a lot of practice," Rose said. "Practice at football and on my own time. I also spent endless hours in the weight room to build up leg strength."

Rose also played soccer since he was a child and credits that sport with helping to be a solid kicker.

Rose was also quick to note that kicking was more than just him. "There are 10 other teammates on the field with me. I would never have been selected without my teammates blocking for me along with Sam Laytart holding snaps from Nathan McGregor."

Both Cox and Rose plan to play college football. Cox has drawn some Division I interest, including several Mid-American Conference schools and Western Kentucky. Eastern Kentucky has also shown interest and the University of Kentucky has offered Cox a spot on the roster as a walk-on.

"Everything is pretty stagnant right now," he said. "I'm not hearing much from the big schools, but that doesn't mean they are out of the question. Walking on is still an option at this point."

Rose will most likely go to an NAIA or NCAA Division II or III school. "My dream is to play college football," he said. "The schools that have been in contact include Hanover College, Lindsey Wilson, the University of Pikeville, University the Cumberlands and Kentucky Wesleyan."

Cox to play in Border Bowl

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Anderson County football player Ross Cox has been selected to play in the annual National Guard Border Bowl all-star football game, to be held at the University of the Cumberlands on Saturday, Jan. 11. Kickoff is set for 12:30 p.m.

Cox will be a member of the Kentucky squad that will meet the Tennessee all-stars. Kentucky will be coached by Owensboro's Joe Prince with some of the state's top high school coaches, including Scott County's Jim McKee and Conner's David Trosper, on the staff. Tennessee will be led by Anderson County (located in Clinton, near Knoxville) coach David Gillum.

Cox was to leave for the game on Tuesday. "I hope to represent the community and the school as best I can," he said in a Facebook message, "while also showing the scouts that will be down there that I can play with the best in Kentucky and Tennessee."

Some of Cox's opponents during the season will also be on the Kentucky team. Collins running back Dre Farris and linebacker Masai Whyte, both headed for Western Kentucky, are listed on the game roster. Pulaski County receiver Aaron Smith and defensive lineman Will Mobley are also on the team.

Others on the Kentucky team include Scott County receiver

Anderson County's Ross Cox looks picks up some of his nearly 2,300 yards last fall. He will play in Saturday's Border Bowl.

Scott Daniel, Henry Clay receiver Elijah Bell and Paducah Tilghman defensive end Derik Overstreet, all all-state selections.

According to the game website, the game is run by "a non-profit organization established to promote high school football in Kentucky and Tennessee. The objective is to provide an All-Star Game featuring the top players in Kentucky and Tennessee.

"This game allows players to have the opportunity to play, practice, and battle it out for the rights to the border. It also allows high school seniors an opportunity to gain additional exposure and, perhaps, earn a scholarship for college. Each player must be nominated by his coach. All player profiles are reviewed by a panel of coaches from their home state to field the best possible team."

Although he is not a member of the official game committee, Anderson County resident Freddie Maggard, a former University of Kentucky quarterback, is close to the Border Bowl. As Community Relations Liaison for the Kentucky National Guard, the game's prime sponsor, Maggard has taken a keen interest since the game started.

"Many players have earned scholarships over the years," Maggard says. "Playing a minor role in continuing educations and developing future leaders is a humbling and gratifying role. The National Guard Border Bowl has alumni playing at Harvard, in BCS games, and in colleges and universities across America."

Anderson County's Zach Freeman jockeyes for reebounding position during the Bearcats' win over Estill County on Dec. 26.

ranked No. 7 in the Rating the State Monday - this Anderson team just has a confident air about it that says playing in the final game of the Kentucky high school basketball season is as much a possibility today as it was two months ago.

On the boys' side of the ledger, the Bearcats got some pre-season love as the Eighth Region's best team. That, however, was more of a reflection on the region than it was of the Bearcats.

The current Anderson team is kind of an enigma. The Bearcats have shown a ton of potential but have been very inconsistent.

There have been some solid wins, like East Ridge and Estill County, but no signature victory. That is partly the result of a schedule that was set up for December development, though. There have also been some puzzling losses, most notably a thrashing from a Wolfe County just two weeks after the same teams played down to the wire.

Anderson has shown some good things, and like the Lady Bearcats, when the Bearcats are shooting well, they are very tough to beat. But there is little size and a team with a strong inside game could really give Anderson fits. However, this is not 2009, when Anderson County's Luke Mann powers to the basket against Estill County.

Anderson and Shelby County were not only atop the Eighth Region all season but were also two of the state's best teams. It is a year when the region is wide open and no one has moved to the point of being a prohibitive favorite.

It says here the keys to the Bearcats' season will be defense, depth and development. Right now, Anderson is probably a darkhorse regional contender. But over the next six weeks, that could change.

What is certain is that 2014 should be an interesting year for Anderson County basketball.

Ranking the Eighth Region

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Anderson News sports editor John Herndon handicaps the Eighth Region

Boys

1. Collins (11-2)
Titans have been impressive in the early going and got a big win over Mason County in Indianapolis Saturday.
2. South Oldham (10-2)
Defending champs are off to fast start, but lost to Collins by 18.
3. Oldham County (9-4)
Good talent, nice size but have a puzzling loss to Owensboro on the resume.
4. Simon Kenton (7-5)
Don't be deceived by the record. The Pioneers have played a rugged schedule.
5. Anderson County (6-4)
Bearcats have proven they can play with just about anybody but have been very inconsistent. Keep an eye on Henry County, Owen County and Gallatin County.

Girls

1. Anderson County (11-2)
Lady Bearcats have wins over four ranked teams and three regional favorites in the early going.
2. Simon Kenton (13-2)
Pioneers have been very impressive and have similar results playing common opponents with Anderson.
3. Oldham County (3-6)
Have played solid schedule but there is a huge gap between the top two teams and Oldham.
4. Shelby County (8-3)
Off to the school's best start in years, but Anderson demolished Shelby three weeks ago.
5. Gallatin County (7-5)
Streaky team that needs more consistency to contend for the regional crown.

LEGAL NOTICES

LIHEAP CRISIS COMPONENT WILL BEGIN ON JANUARY 13, 2014

Your Blue Grass Community Action Partnership will begin operating the "Crisis" portion of the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) on January 13, 2014. The program is operated on a first come first serve basis until Federal funds are exhausted. LIHEAP assists households that are in a home heating crisis. The deepening of cold winter weather combined with rising utility costs leaves many households unable to fully meet heating bills or purchase sufficient bulk fuel to keep their families safe and warm. Blue Grass Community Action Partnership (CAP) stands ready to help!

Last year over 282 residents of Anderson County received financial assistance and emergency services from the LIHEAP Crisis component.

A household shall be considered to be in a home heating crisis situation when the household meets the basic LIHEAP eligibility criteria and:

- The household is within four (4) days of running out of fuel if bulk fuel (coal, fuel oil, propane, kerosene, or wood) is the heat source;
- The household has received a past due/disconnect notice if natural gas or electric is the heat source; or
- The household's home heating costs are included as an undesignated portion of the rent, and the household has received an eviction notice for non-payment of rent from the landlord.

• Pre-paid Electric customers are eligible to receive LIHEAP assistance if they certify that they have 10 days or less of pre-paid electric remaining.

For all bulk fuels (wood, coal, propane, fuel oil, kerosene) verification of a crisis situation may be self-declaration by the applicant. For natural gas and electric heated households, the applicant must present an appropriate disconnect notice from the utility company.

Applications will be taken at convenient CAP locations in each county. Applicants are encouraged to apply at the location nearest to them in their county of residence. Days, hours of operation, locations and telephone numbers are listed below:

Monday - Thursday, 8 a.m. to 12 noon, Phone 502-839-7102, 117 1/2 Hilltop Drive, Lawrenceburg, KY 40342

LIHEAP is a statewide initiative sponsored by Community Action Kentucky in partnership with the Cabinet for Health and Family Services (CHFS).

45% of Kentucky job seekers look in the newspaper for job openings.

40% look on the Internet.

So if you’re looking for a job...or you’ve got a job opening to tell people about...doesn’t it make sense for both of you to meet where you’re most likely to find one another?

That’s right...in the newspaper.

This fact brought to you by the Kentucky Press Association and its 162 member newspapers.

HOROSCOPES

CAPRICORN
December 22–
January 19

The debate continues. Don't take part unless you have something legitimate to contribute, Capricorn. You might glean more from listening. Hopes rise at home.

ARIES
March 21–
April 19

Horse feathers, Aries. There are two sides to everything. Listen to both before you make a decision. A coworker pushes the envelope one too many times.

CANCER
June 22–
July 22

An article inspires you to do more with less.
Mother Nature
approves! Spread the word, Cancer. A casual conversation at home proves insightful.

LIBRA
September 23–
October 22

Give of yourself freely, Libra, and others will be inspired. A fashion trend begs to be followed. Personal troubles ease with the insight of a youngster.

AQUARIUS
January 20–
February 18

Sink or swim, Aquarius. Helping
hands are all around.
Don't say no. The web of deceit builds at work. Be careful you don't get caught in it.

TAURUS
April 20–
May 20

An old chum is at a crossroads. Be there for them, Taurus, but watch your step. It is their life, not yours. Motivation at work comes from an unlikely source.

July 23–
August 22

Victory will be yours, if you let it, Leo. A chance meeting with an acquaintance provides the impetus you need to complete a project.

SCORPIO
October 23–
November 21

Face it, Scorpio. You're not one for criticism. That all changes this week when you are forced to speak up and let others know what you really think.

Health woes ease for a friend. Invite them out to celebrate, Pisces. The mad dash to meet a deadline begins. Pick up the pace! A phone call settles a matter.

May 21–
June 21

Some goals take longer to reach than others. Be patient, Gemini, and that which you seek will come. A convoluted message misses the mark.

VIRGO
August 23–
September 22

Painstaking efforts to enhance the quality of a piece and still meet the deadline reap many rewards. A senior offers sage advice. Listen closely, Virgo.

SAGITTARIUS
November 22–
December 21

Drat, Sagittarius. Just when you thought you had cleared your desk, something else pops up. Get a move on and don't be afraid to ask for help.

Anderson County firefighters pump water from one tanker into a drop tank early Tuesday morning. The drop tank holds about 2,100 gallons of water that can then be suctioned into another tanker to be used for additional water.

FIRE

Jerry, Johnny, his wife and their grandson on the Versailles Road property.

"I would have put my shoes on, but I didn't think about it," Johnny Walton said.

The 32-year-old, the only one in the barn at the time, and his two dogs were not injured in the fire, although Johnny Walton said he lost all of his possessions.

"Pretty much lost everything he had," Jackie Walton said.

"Thank God he woke up."

Anderson County Fire Chief Mike Barnes said he suspects the cause of the fire to be electrical, mentioning that several appliances in the barn's living space ran on electricity using an extension cord from the house.

Anderson County firefighters responded and quickly got the fire under control before it had the chance to spread to a nearby shed, garage and the Waltons' home. Because there were no fire hydrants nearby, firefighters funneled water from one tanker into a drop tank that could hold about 2,000 gallons of water, Barnes said, which was then suctioned up by a second fire truck to be used for additional water to fight the blaze.

"We weren't going to save the barn, but we wanted to stop [the fire] from extending to the garage and the house," Barnes said Tuesday afternoon.

With the wind chill dropping the temperature to a bone-chilling minus 5 degrees Fahrenheit when the fire first broke out, firefighters' hoses, valves and even the water froze in the extreme cold, Barnes said.

Barnes said firefighters spent several hours Tuesday morning into the afternoon thawing equipment.

"As soon as [the water] would hit something other than the fire, it would instantly freeze," he said.

"That's hard not only on the trucks but the firemen themselves."

Firefighters fought the structure fire in shifts as those out in the cold were relieved from their posts and headed into the garage to warm up with coffee and hot chocolate supplied by the county Fire Department Auxiliary.

"We do as much as we can to alleviate the pain in being out in temperatures like this," Barnes said.

Chief Barnes said firefighters were able to return all trucks back to their respective stations but that several tankers' valves froze open, and consequently dropped water onto the roadway. To ensure the safety of drivers traveling down Versailles Road, Barnes said, the state highway department was contacted to lay down additional salt on the roads.

"That's just something that happens when you're fighting fires in this cold weather," he said.

Along with county fire and the fire auxiliary, Anderson County EMS and the Anderson County Sheriff's Office also responded to the scene of Tuesday's fire.
